Julie Su

United States Deputy Secretary of Labor
United States Department of Labor

Julie Su was appointed by President Biden to serve as the deputy secretary of labor and confirmed by the Senate on July 13, 2021. The deputy secretary serves as the de-facto chief operating officer for the department, overseeing its workforce, managing its budget and executing the priorities of the secretary of labor.

Prior to joining the U.S. Department of Labor, Deputy Secretary Su served as the secretary for the California Labor and Workforce Development Agency. The LWDA enforces workplace laws, combats wage theft, ensures health and safety on the job, connects Californians to quality jobs and career pathways, and administers unemployment insurance, workers compensation and paid family leave.

Su is a nationally recognized expert on workers' rights and civil rights who has dedicated her distinguished legal career to advancing justice on behalf of poor and disenfranchised communities and is a past recipient of a MacArthur Foundation "genius" grant.

As California labor commissioner from 2011 through 2018, Su enforced the state's labor laws to ensure a fair and just workplace for both employees and employers. A report on her tenure released in May 2013 found that her leadership resulted in a renaissance in enforcement activity and record-setting results. In 2014, she launched the first "Wage Theft Is a Crime" multimedia, multilingual statewide campaign to reach out to low-wage workers and their employers to help them understand their rights and feel safe speaking up about labor law abuses.

Prior to her appointment as California labor commissioner, Deputy Secretary Su was the litigation director at Asian Americans Advancing Justice-Los Angeles, the nation's largest non-profit civil rights organization devoted to issues affecting the Asian American community. Su is known for pioneering a multi-strategy approach that combines successful impact litigation with multiracial organizing, community education, policy reform, coalition building and media work.

Frequently named to top-lawyer lists such as the Daily Journal's "Top 75 Women Litigators" in California and California Lawyer's "Super Lawyers," she was the first labor commissioner to be included among the Daily Journal's "Top 75 Labor and Employment Lawyers." She has also been named one of the 50 most noteworthy women alumni of Harvard Law School and one of the 100 most influential people in Los Angeles in Los Angeles Magazine.

Su has taught at UCLA Law School and Northeastern Law School. She is a graduate of Stanford University and Harvard Law School and began her career with a Skadden Fellowship. Su speaks Mandarin and Spanish.

Roza Agaydarova

Founder

Adolat Sari Olg'a (Onward Toward Justice), Uzbekistan

Roza Agaydarova, from Syrdarya region, Uzbekistan, worked in the human resources department of Indorama, a cotton plantation and spinning company with investments from the IFC. She was transferred to the accounting department after raising concerns about lack of contracts and poor working conditions. After she reported concerns about financial irregularities and possible corruption, she was fired. In January 2021, she successfully sued for reinstatement. In March, Roza led the formation of the first democratic union election in Uzbekistan's history, organizing more than 200 workers at Indorama. Today, the union, Adolat Sari Olg'a, has more than 600 members and is negotiating for permanent contracts and better conditions for farmworkers at Indorama.

Allison Lee (Lee Li Hua)

Secretary General

Yilan Migrant Fishermen Union (YMFU), Taiwan

Allison Lee is a co-founder and the Secretary General of the Yilan Migrant Fishermen Union, Taiwan's first labor union composed of and led by foreign workers, and is a leading voice in demanding stronger protections for fishing crew members and accountability for human traffickers. Ms. Lee spearheaded the establishment of the union after working for 16 years for Taiwan NGOs focused on labor rights issues and handling labor disputes for four years at the municipal level as an employee of Taipei's Labor Affairs Bureau. Since founding the Yilan Migrant Fishermen Union in 2013, Ms. Lee has advocated for the rights of foreign fishermen working on Taiwan-flagged vessels and documented hundreds of accounts of exploitation, abuse, and underpayment. By serving as a voice for these often unseen and unheard foreign fishing crew members, Ms. Lee has raised international and domestic awareness of exploitative working conditions, including instances of forced labor. In one case, she successfully pushed to reopen an investigation into the death of an Indonesian fisherman on a Taiwan-flagged vessel. Ms. Lee and her advocacy partners drive change from the grassroots level through sustained pressure on officials and direct engagement with under-represented communities, including victims of human trafficking. She continues to engage local labor bureaus, fisheries associations, and law enforcement to seek justice and compensation for crew members who are exploited at the hands of their employers and labor brokers.

About Los Jornaleros del Norte (The Day Laborer Band)

The Los Angeles California based Day Laborer Band was created by community members and musicians after an ICE (Immigration and Customs Enforcement) raid that took place in the City of Industry, California in 1995 while a mobile health clinic of the Los Angeles County Health Department was providing HIV and other STD testing to Latino workers and families. Omar Sierra, one of the main vocalists of the band, was present during the raid and decided to write a Corrido (ballad) about the incident.

As time went on, the Day Laborer Band expanded and became a fundamental tool in the organizing effort for day laborers. The band's purpose is to inform, educate, organize, and mobilize migrant day laborers, sensitize the general community about day labor related issues, and denounce the abuses committed against them. The band has performed for day laborers at corners and centers, for local unions, for students, for activists, for teachers, and more.
